The Entourage Effect and Whole Plant Medicine

In addition to THC and CBD, the cannabis plant contains many more cannabinoids and other therapeutic substances, all of which work together to produce a desired effect in the body. This process is called the entourage effect. At Tree of Life Botanicals we believe the entourage effect is as nature intended. Full-spectrum cannabinoid products contain all these compounds, as well as terpenes. Terpenes are chemicals in plants which give them their smell and taste. They also carry therapeutic properties, and are present in herbs, spices and essential oils.

In contrast, isolates are made of a single chemical compound which is extracted from the plant, isolating it from all other compounds. Studies have shown that full-spectrum cannabinoids are more effective at restoring the body's wellness than individual compounds acting alone.
